Strathmore University Identity: Coat of Arms

The Three Hearts represent the three races which, in 1961 when the University started, were segregated in the colonial system of education. Today, it symbolises the common aim of parents, teachers and students in the educational process of Strathmore.

The Motto "Ut omnes unum sint" is Latin. It is a quotation from a passage of the Gospel (John 17:21), and means "That all may be one".

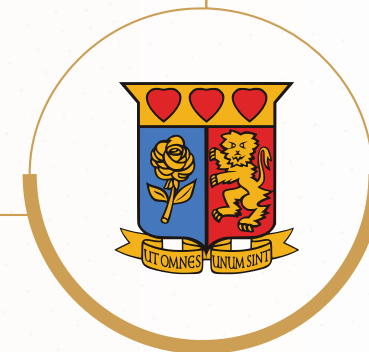

(Azure) Sky blue means high ideals, high aims.

(Gules) Blood red means sacrifice, love, fortitude.

(Yellow) Gold means eternity, perfection.

The Lion is the symbol of strength and courage and of the determined fight for excellence and justice. It also represents Kenya, the country Strathmore was founded in, which like many African countries strives boldly to attain all the qualities mentioned above.

The Rose in full bloom represents love, the source of all good desires and actions, even if at times this means loving sacrifice, as represented by the thorns.

Our Mission and Vision

To provide an all-round quality education in an atmosphere of freedom and responsibility, excellence in teaching, research and scholarship, ethical and social development and service to society.

To be a leading entrepreneurial University positively impacting society by doing excellent work.

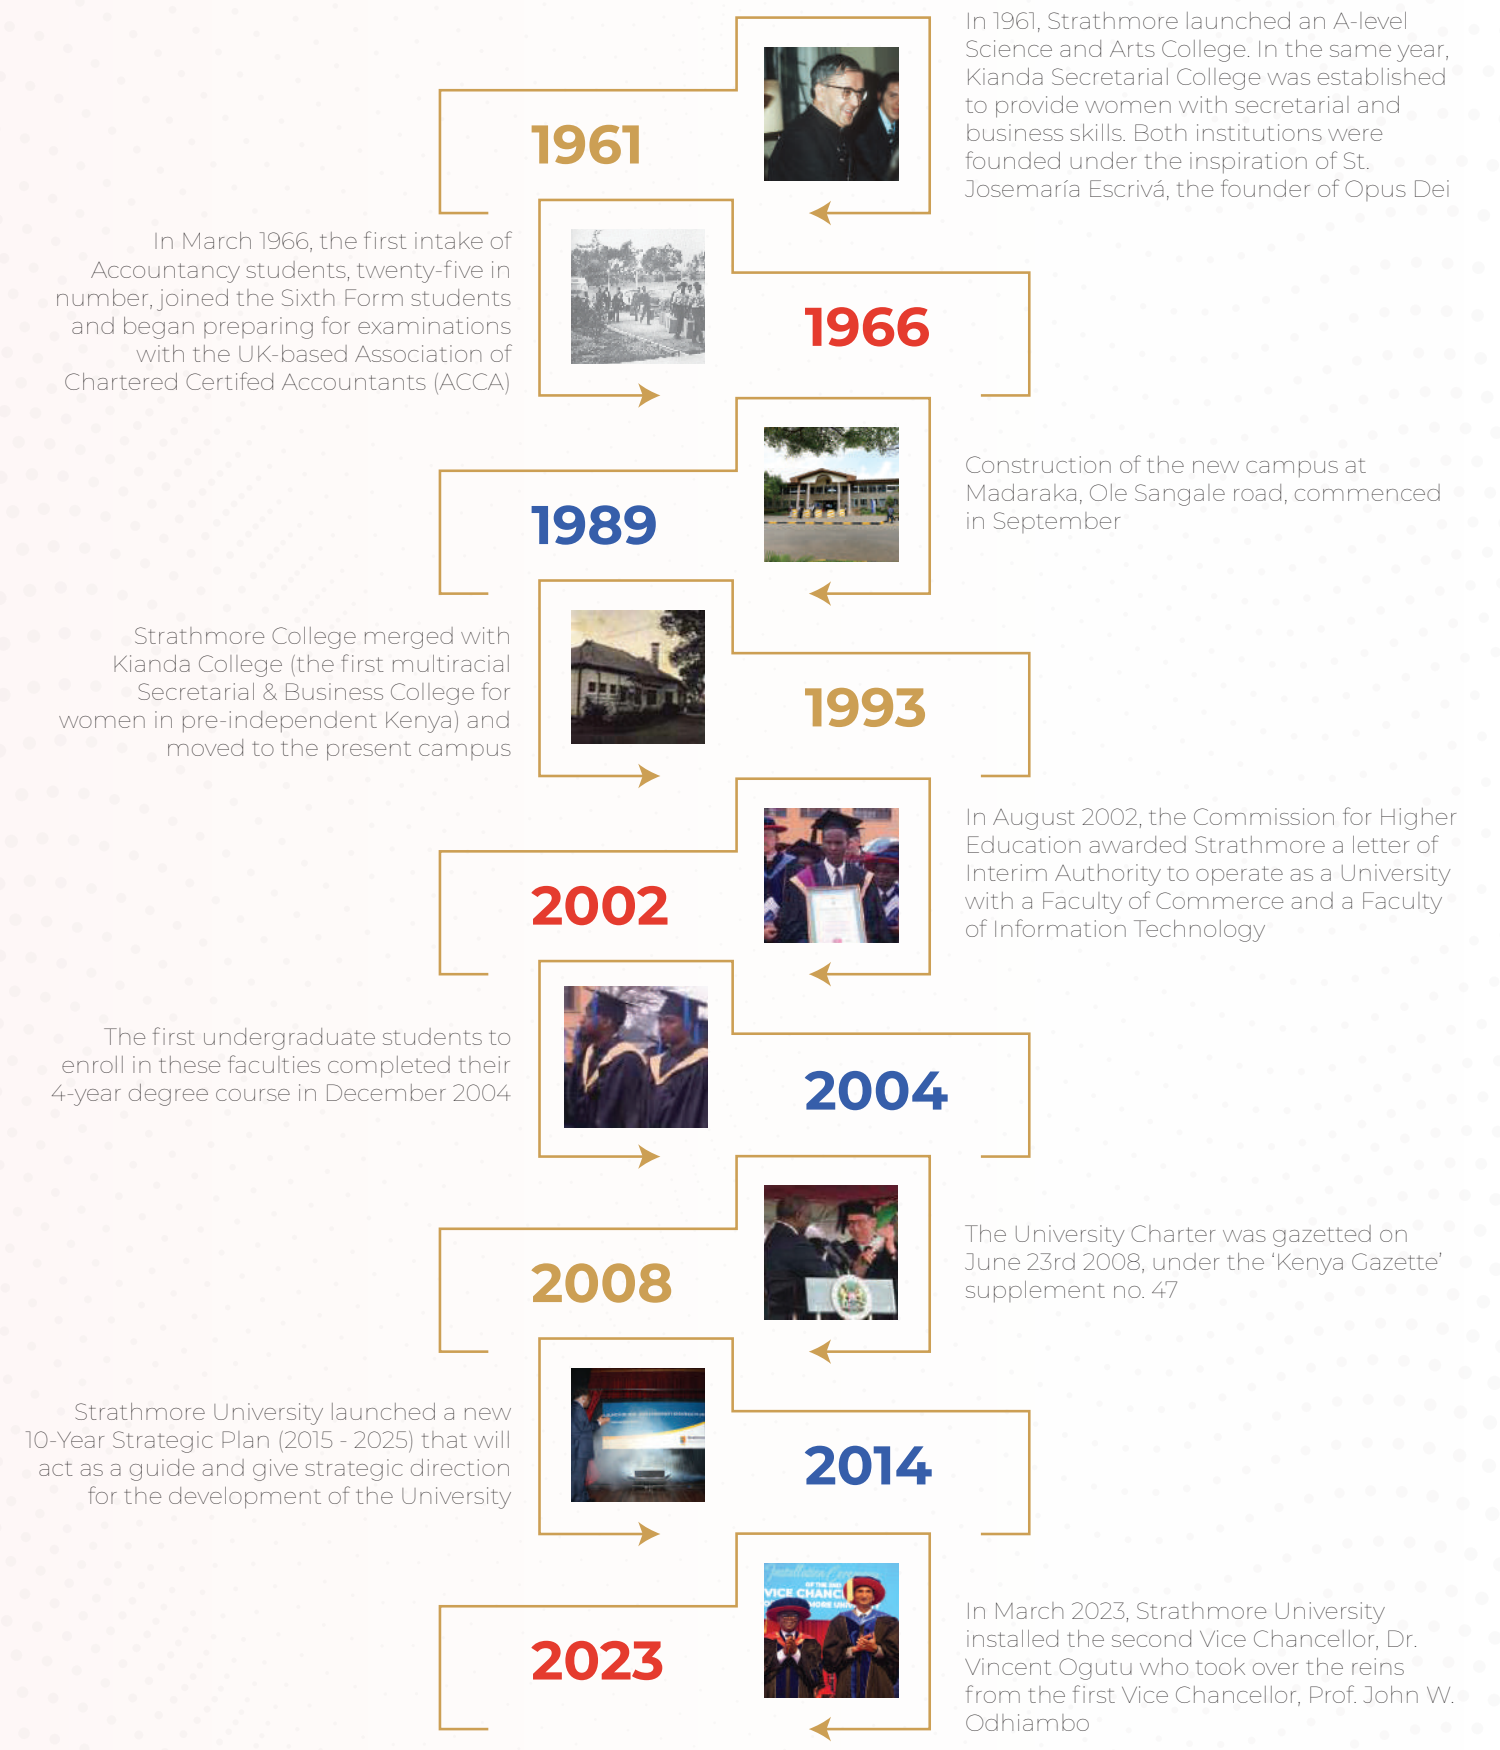

Our values help create a culture where our students and staff feel supported, valued, respected and inspired. Our eight core values form the acronym SELF – SPEC.

SELF

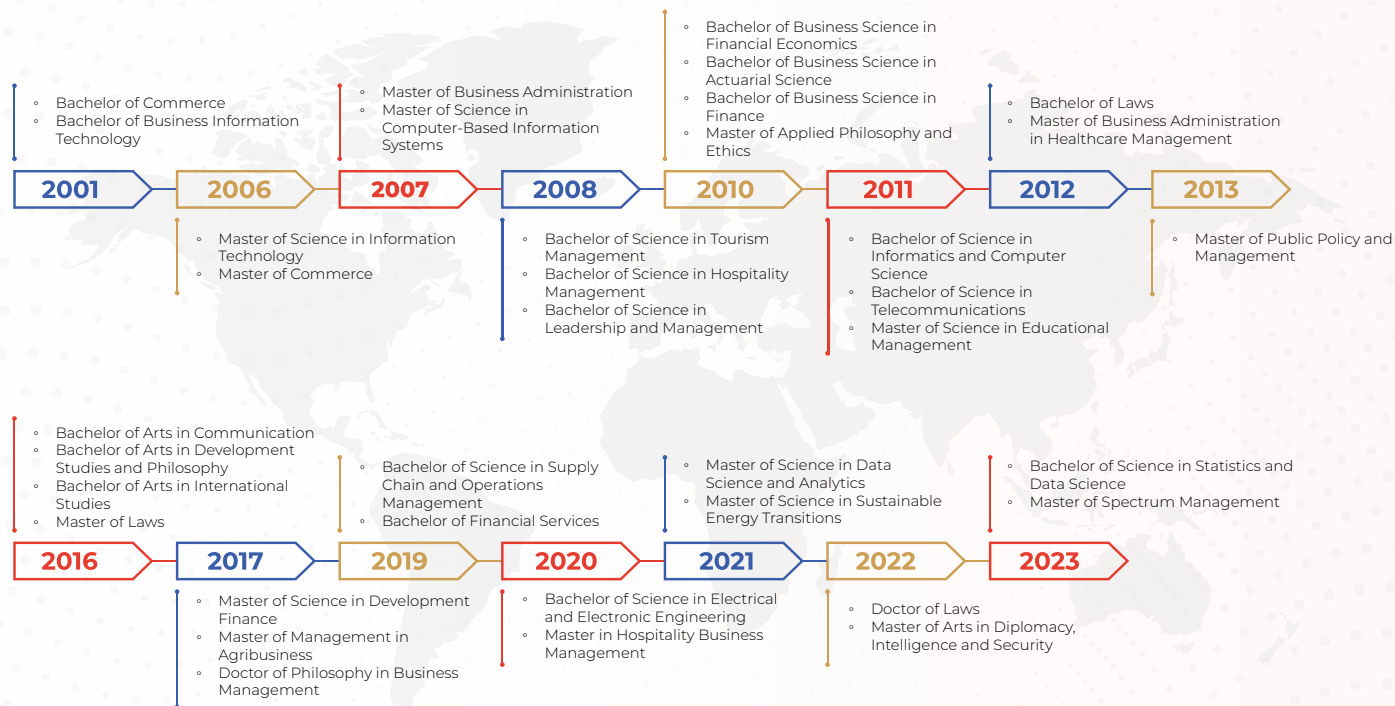

Relates to the individual's relationship with oneself. Strathmore University's values must begin with SELF. Each staff member and student must strive to support the mission of the University, which is summarised as SELF: Service to Society; Excellence; Life-long learning; and Freedom and Responsibility.

SPEC

Relates to the individual's relationships with others. Each staff member and student must strive to espouse values that cultivate healthy relationships with others, summarised as SPEC: Subsidiarity; Personalised Attention; Ethical Practice; and Collegiality.

THEME OF THE YEAR
2025

Personalised Attention

#BecauseWeCare

This year's theme is a call to create an environment where every individual feels valued, supported, and empowered. Rooted in a human-centered approach, this theme reflects our commitment to providing customised service and care to all members of our community. At the core of this value is the idea our Founder, St. Josemaria had, that each person is unique, deserving of dignity, respect, and opportunities to flourish. When once asked whom he valued most at a University; whether a professor or a cleaner, he replied that he didn't actually know. He said it would ultimately depend on who put more love in his or her work.

In today's fast-paced world, where utilitarian mindsets often prevail, people are frequently conditioned to view others through the lens of what they can offer, often defined by the question, "What's in it for me?" The essence of personalised attention directly challenges this mentality, urging recognition of the inherent value in every person. Whether the person being served can reciprocate or not makes no difference. They deserve to be served well all the same.

As this theme is embraced, the focus turns to cultivating a culture of excellence characterised by intentionality, attention to detail, and empathy. A lecturer, for example, cannot view students merely as names on a register, but as individuals capable of thriving under his or her guidance. Listening to students' feedback, incorporating their insights, and adapting teaching and services are integral to creating a learning environment that helps them attain their fullest potential.

For students, personalised attention is not only about receiving care – it also involves active engagement. While more digitally savvy than previous generations, there is value in regularly stepping away from digital noise and investing time in meaningful interactions with peers, faculty, and the broader university community. Some have even taken on the challenge of a weekly digital fast to foster deeper presence and connection. Research has shown that bonds formed during university years often evolve into life-long relationships that significantly impact personal and professional life. Reaching out to someone with full attention can spark connections that last a lifetime.

Each individual is encouraged to reflect on how this theme can be brought to life – whether through engagement with parents, suppliers, sponsors, donors, or any of our collaborators. If personalised attention is fully embraced, Strathmore will become that one place everyone looks forward to coming to. Quick replies to queries will be the norm, and smiles will greet every request. Those serving others will no longer dread new problems but will welcome the opportunity to help. And appreciation will be freely given.

Let us all strive to live personalised attention, because we care.

GRADUATE SPEAKER

Valedictorian Speech 2025

They say a journey of a thousand miles begins with a single step, and as I stand here, I am humbled by the incredible journey each one of us has taken to reach this moment. What began as a commitment that, no matter what life threw at us or how long it would take, we would be in this school, pursuing our preferred course option so that we could attain the degree qualification. And oh boy, did life throw things at us!

We started in the shadow of a post-COVID world, where even a handshake or group discussion to promote collegiality was almost a disciplinary offence. But we adapted. University life quickly unfolded with its rhythm: CATs, group projects, balancing attendance, navigating the dress code, chasing after Service Based Learning and Work Based Learning placements, and of course, conquering the infamous Management Research Project. Just when we thought we had seen it all, our final year came with its turbulence of nationwide demonstrations.

Each of us has a story. I may be the one delivering this speech, but today, every one of us is a Valedictorian in our own capacity. You alone know the battles you have fought, the sleepless nights, the sacrifices, and the strength it took to wear this gown. You have earned this moment.

One of the most beautiful things about university life is that we did not just begin a single journey; we began many, all moving in harmony. While we pursued our degrees, we also pursued growth in every possible form. Some of us had the boldness to venture into entrepreneurship, from selling at flea markets and building online businesses to finding creative ways to generate income. Others found early opportunities in the corporate world, securing internships or jobs and jump starting their careers.

Along the way, many of us formed friendships that turned into powerful support systems; people who added value to our lives, challenged our thinking, and reminded us to keep reaching for our goals. Some even found true love, the kind that now speaks of serious lifelong commitment. Do not be surprised if this graduation is followed closely by a season of weddings! The point is, while we were young, inexperienced, and financially strained, we could still see the preciousness in each other.

If you did not quite fall into any of the categories I have mentioned, do not worry, because even as one journey ends today, another begins at this very moment. This is life after graduation.

I remember a question one of our lecturers asked us: "When you finally graduate, will you say that you went through Strathmore, or that Strathmore went through you?" At first, it sounded like simple wordplay, but those words have stayed with me ever since.

Now that we stand here as graduands, about to be conferred and empowered with the powers to read, the real work begins. It is time to pick up the tools of trade; our knowledge, our energy, our grit, and pour them into meaningful work that drives impact. Be hungry for the goals you want to achieve. Be bold in your dreams.

The moment we have all been working towards has arrived, and now the world waits, not to hand us anything, but to see what we will give back. Let us step forward bravely, take up the spaces others avoid, and speak up for what others choose to ignore. Because in the end, it will not just be about the degree we earned, but about the difference we made. At the end of it all, make your life count. Class of 2025, congratulations, we did it. Now, let us go forward and show the world what we are capable of!

Thank you, and may God bless our journeys, and may God bless Strathmore University.

CHAIR, UNIVERSITY COUNCIL

Graduation Speech 2025

Today is a day of celebration, of dreams fulfilled, and of new beginnings: I share with you a deep and profound joy - the kind of joy a mother feels when she sees her children standing tall, confident, and ready to step into their future. Congratulations to all of you; you have made us proud.

Even as we mark this important milestone for our graduands, it is also a moment to reflect on developments within the broader University community. A few highlights from the University Council perspective:

We have recently undergone some changes in the composition of the University Council, as the terms of some Council members came to an end. I take this opportunity to thank these members profoundly for their service, insight, and dedication that has contributed significantly to the Council's work and to the advancement of our University. I also welcome the new members who have joined the Council. We are confident that your perspectives and expertise will enrich our work.

Even as these changes take place within the Council, the University continues to move forward with key initiatives that will shape its future. Guided by the Council, the University is developing a new Master Plan and a Strategic Plan for 2026–2030 to anticipate and shape future infrastructure, programmes, and the needs of students and staff. As always, this strategic process includes input from diverse stakeholders - students, staff, sponsors, and employers. These two key documents will be launched soon.

One of the major priorities outlined in our forward-looking plans is the expansion of our physical infrastructure to support academic growth and innovation. In line with this, Strathmore is preparing to launch the public phase of fundraising for the new Kevin O'Byrne STEM Complex. Trends in technology, science, and mathematics are taking centre stage and shaping daily lives; our focus on STEM is therefore very intentional. Strathmore envisions a facility that will nurture the next generation of innovators, scientists, and entrepreneurs. We hope to empower our incoming students in STEM and lead Africa's technological and scientific transformation. We welcome financial and material contributions from you, our parents, to make this endeavour a success.

As we invest in the future of our University, we also pause to reflect on the future that awaits each of you, our graduands. You are stepping into a future shaped by your hard work, ready to influence, inspire, and build what comes next.

Dear Class of 2025: I invite you to consider three choices that can guide you towards a meaningful and fulfilling life.

First, commit to a purpose beyond yourself. The world needs professionals willing to confront its urgent challenges in education, health, the environment, or social justice. True leadership lies in using your knowledge to make a difference.

Second, embrace joy in all you do. Whether in your career, your family, or your service, seek the joy that gives meaning to your work. Life is not only about success, but about the deep satisfaction that comes from using your gifts well and finding fulfillment along the way.

Finally, invest in authentic relationships. Beyond career, it is your family, your friendships, and your community that will matter the most. Ultimately, it is the time shared with those you love that brings joy.

All the three above will only be meaningful when anchored in God. The Founder of this University, St. Josemaria, always challenged us to serve in an extraordinary way wherever we are; be it in the office, in social life, or at home. So go forth and serve with integrity and heart.

Thank you, undergraduates, postgraduates, and especially our international students, thank you for trusting Strathmore to be your home over the last few years. You have enriched our community in countless ways, and I want you to know: You will always have a family here. Once again, Congratulations, Class of 2025. God bless you all.

VICE CHANCELLOR'S Speech for the Class of 2025

I am honored to stand before you on this momentous occasion of the 21st graduation ceremony as we celebrate the hard work, dedication, and perseverance of 1752 graduands, with a record of 12 doctorate degrees. On behalf of the University Management Board, I extend my heartfelt congratulations to each one of you.

Our journey to date has been anchored in the bold vision of our Founder, St. Josemaria Escriva, whose dream was to establish an institution that would nurture and form ethical leaders who serve society and uphold human dignity, moral character, and a well-formed conscience in leading others. He believed that leaders should strive for excellence in their work, rooted in a deep understanding of how their actions affect others and promote human flourishing.

In keeping with our Founder's vision, our operations in the last academic year have been guided by the overarching theme of personalised attention, a focus on the person. In a world that often tries to standardise talent and streamline dreams, Strathmore prides itself in its choice to be human-centric. As the bearers of this call, we believe that delivering tailored services and meaningful engagement to every member of our community is key in ensuring that each person feels seen, heard, and valued in their unique journey.

This year has not just witnessed possibilities but has also redefined limits. You did not simply study here. You thrived here. You led research, launched start-ups, won global challenges, and created impact where others saw impossibility. Hearty congratulations to the doctoral graduands. Of the 12 doctorate degrees, we have research in the areas of Business and Management, Healthcare Management, Logistics, and Supply Chain Management, thus demonstrating increased research output. Ladies and gentlemen, this achievement contributes towards bolstering our faculty bench. In the same breath, I congratulate our sportsmen and women, our mooters from the Law School who won several global competitions, and our innovators for bringing home the Inaugural Tri-continental Sustainability Competition prize.

In our endeavour to be an entrepreneurial University, we ensured that we have prepared you for the dynamic employment landscape. Many of you may have interacted with the @iBiz Incubation Centre at our @iLabAfrica Research and Innovation Hub—launching ventures, solving real-world challenges, and developing entrepreneurial skills to serve you for a lifetime. In a world where the employment market is evolving, we encourage you to embrace that entrepreneurial mindset. Be job creators, not just job seekers. Be bold enough to forge your own paths.

And as we nurtured you, you turned outward. You served. You led mentorship programmes, renovated schools, partnered with prisons, and visited children's homes. You practiced Ubuntu in action. You gave back, not because it was required, but because it was right and because at Strathmore, we care.

Our celebration today would not have been possible without the contribution of our faculty and administrative staff, our parents and guardians, and the larger circle of care and encouragement that surrounds us all. Thank you for generously investing your time, resources, expertise, and for the unwavering support you have offered these graduands throughout their journey.

Today as you join the Strathmore Alumni community that stretches across the globe, we urge you to stay connected. Attend chapter meetings. Mentor future Stratizens. Contribute to the journey of others. The world is in dire need of thinkers, doers, and dreamers.

In the words of our Founder, "Dream and your dreams will fall short; set out boldly with God's grace to build something great that will outlast you."

Congratulations class of 2025!

Dr. Vincent Ogutu
Vice Chancellor

Dr. Vincent Ogutu

Dear Graduating Class of 2025,

As I reflect on this momentous day and the journey that has brought you here, I am filled with profound admiration for what you have accomplished and boundless hope for what lies ahead.

Your time at Strathmore University has been more than an accumulation of knowledge and skills. It has been an experience in what education can and should be when it recognises the inherent worth and unique potential of every individual. In an age where education often becomes mechanised, where students risk becoming mere numbers in vast systems, you have experienced something different—an approach that sees you, values you, and develops you as complete human beings.

This distinction matters more than we might initially realise. History teaches us that technical knowledge without moral foundation, intelligence without empathy, and skills without humanity can become dangerous instruments rather than tools of progress. The most sophisticated education systems can produce individuals who are intellectually capable yet morally bankrupt, professionally competent yet personally disconnected from the human impact of their work.

But personalised attention changes everything. When educators take time to understand your individual struggles, aspirations, and potential, they do more than improve your academic performance—they shape your character. When mentors invest in your personal growth, sharing not just their expertise but their wisdom and humanity, they create leaders who understand that success without service is hollow. When your peers form genuine connections that celebrate strengths and support weaknesses, they build the foundation of an empathetic society.

You have been the beneficiaries of this transformative approach, and now you carry its promise into the world. Your families, who have supported you through every challenge and celebrated your victories, have witnessed this transformation. They have seen you grow not just in knowledge but in wisdom, not just in capability but in character. The investment they made in your education—the sacrifices, the encouragement, the unwavering belief in your potential—has yielded fruit that extends far beyond personal achievement.

As you step into your careers and assume new responsibilities, remember that you also are ambassadors embodying personalised attention. In whatever field you enter, you have the opportunity and obligation to perpetuate this approach. Be the professional who sees colleagues and clients as complete human beings, not just resources or transactions. Be the leader who recognises the unique potential in every team member. Be the innovator who considers the human impact of every decision.

The world you are entering faces complex challenges that require not just technical solutions but human wisdom. Climate change demands not just scientific understanding but moral courage to make difficult choices. Economic inequality requires not just policy expertise but empathy for those who struggle. Technological advancement needs not just programming skills but ethical reflection on how innovation affects human flourishing. These challenges cannot be solved by people who possess knowledge without humanity—they require individuals like you, who have been shaped by an education that develops both mind and heart.

Your families have hopes for your success, but I believe their deepest hope is that you will use your education to make the world more humane. They want you to prosper, but they also want you to be people of integrity. They desire your happiness, but they also dream of your contribution to the happiness of others. This is the hope that personalised education makes possible—graduates who understand that true success is measured not just in personal achievements but in the positive impact on others' lives.

Rev. Dr. Silvano Ochuodho

As you begin new chapters in your lives, carry forward the understanding that every person you encounter—whether in boardrooms or communities, in laboratories or classrooms, in hospitals or courtrooms—deserves the same personalised attention you received here. See them as individuals with unique stories, potential, and worth. Listen to their perspectives. Believe in their capabilities. Invest in their growth.

In our increasingly connected yet often impersonal world, this human-centered approach becomes more valuable than ever. While artificial intelligence can process information and automation can perform tasks, the uniquely human qualities—empathy, moral reasoning, the ability to connect personally with others—remain irreplaceable. These are the qualities that personalised attention has cultivated in you.

The hope I have for you extends beyond your individual success to the collective impact you will have on our society. You are graduating not just as skilled professionals but as agents of transformation, equipped to create environments where others can flourish. You understand that true leadership isn't about commanding but about serving, that genuine innovation isn't just about efficiency but about enhancing human dignity, that real education isn't just about information transfer but about unlocking human potential.

To your families, I say thank you for entrusting us with your most precious gifts. Your children are ready not just to succeed but to serve, not just to achieve by themselves but also to inspire others to achieve. They carry forward the promise of personalised education—that when we truly see, value, and develop each person as a complete human being, we create a more humane and hopeful world.

Congratulations, Class of 2025. Go forth as living proof that education, delivered with personalised attention and genuine care, can indeed make us more human. The world is waiting for the hope you represent.

With deep respect and boundless optimism for your future. God bless you all.

Rev. Dr. Silvano Ochuodho
